Improvements Are Underway At the Airport

I WENT to Eldorado to see if I could find out just who is Alex Hamilton but had no luck and wound up at the Harrisburg-Raleigh airport instead, where improvements are under way.

Alex Hamilton has been getting some meaty articles in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat's Mail Bag and whether you agree with him or not you must admit the articles have merit. Nobody I approached seemed to know who he is and I gave up my search in favor of the airport.

Out at the airplane field there's some construction going on, under contract to the J. D. Barter Construction Co.

Right now Barter is in the process of blacktopping around the two T-hangers, where there has been no pavement, and there will be some paving at the intersection of the two 2,800-foot runways, one of which is paved, the other solid.

Reason for paving the intersection, Dale Sullivan, chairman of the airport authority's board of commissioners said, is that it will eliminate a hazard caused by erosion.

Included in this same project is lighting. A low intensity lighting system will be constructed on the hard runway, with lights 50-feet apart, and there'll be a gadget connected with it which is fascinating.

Bought from the Pacific Coast Signal Co. is an electric "ear" which hears the vibration of an airplane motor overhead and turns on the lights. The lights will remain on long enough for a plane to land on the runway and taxi in.

There also will be a white and green beacon light on a standard near the main hangar building which will burn all night.

The work is being done at little cost to the authority, Sullivan pointed out. The total construction cost is approximately $12,000 with the state granting $17,500 for the job and the authority paying the rest.

And if any of you readers can give me a tip (anonymous or otherwise) on the identity of Alex Hamilton, who writes a good article, please let Timmo know. Of course, that may be his right name, but I believe it to be a nom de plume.

Begin Inquiry Into Blast, Fire Aboard Carrier

Navy Board Will Check Indications Of Any Sabotage

QUONSET POINT, R. I. (U) — Survivors of the scarred aircraft carrier Bennington appear before a special naval board of inquiry today to describe the explosions and fire that ripped through the great ship Wednesday, killing 91 and injuring 201.

The board, headed by Rear Admiral John M. (Peg Leg) Hoskins, will check particulars for any indications that sabotage might have been involved, although Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas said preliminary inspection showed no evidence of sabotage.

The Bennington's master, Capt. William F. Raborn of Oklahoma City, Okla., said he had no idea what caused the explosion and fire.

Other investigations were ordered by the armed services committees of the House and the Senate. Rep. Edith Rogers (R-Mass.) suggested the possibility that Communists may have attempted to cripple the ship.

While the investigations shaped up, intelligence officers and engineers searched the blackened interior of the carrier for clues to the disaster.

"I am damned proud to be the commanding officer of such a heroic and unselfish crew of American seamen," he said. "Their rescue effort was splendid."

Raborn ordered full speed ahead for Quonset while damage control parties and rescue workers fought their way into the choking smoke that billowed from the third deck in the forward port section.

Install Speed Limit Signs in Vicinity Of Housing Project

Chief of Police Loren Travelstead said that traffic signs limiting motor vehicle speeds to 15 miles per hour are being installed today on Barnett and Feazel streets in the vicinity of the housing development and that the limit will be strictly enforced.

The speed limit was ordered by the city council recently because of the hazard which prevailed because children of below school age have been darting into the street.

Travelstead also said that the school flash signals will be turned off for the summer after tomorrow morning because of the end of the school term, but warned motorists they must be doubly careful in driving this summer as children will be spread out more over the city and there will be more widespread danger of hitting one.

Airlines Fight Proposal to Slash Subsidies

Recommendations Given Eisenhower By Gov't Committee

WASHINGTON (U) — Industry leaders today indicated the nation's airlines will fight at least some of the drastic new government proposals to slash air subsidies and eliminate "uneconomical" systems.

The proposals were made in a report to President Eisenhower Wednesday by the Air Coordinating Committee, composed of representatives from nine government departments and agencies.

Mr. Eisenhower, who ordered the report last fall, said he plans consideration of questions related to civil aviation and in making recommendations to Congress.

Most controversial of the report's recommendations were those involving federal subsidies and airline routes. The airlines, themselves, are not agreed on these questions.

Observing that aviation is past the "infant industry" stage, the ACC recommended that subsidies to airlines operating within this country be cut back as "rapidly as possible."

Urges Consolidations
For the country's 13 major, or "trunk," airlines it recommended consolidation "into a more limited number of systems" which could support themselves without federal aid.

The committee also proposed an "orderly" end to operations of any of the 30-odd smaller airlines which do not demonstrate "continued and significant progress towards self-sufficiency."

Where it is necessary to continue the services provided by an eliminated airline, the ACC said, the authority should be turned over to a line which can do it "without cost, or at substantially reduced cost, to the government."

The trunk airlines, all but three of which now operate without subsidy, believe the addition of such local services to their routes would be a financial drain.

The ACC said the public interest can best be served "if each form of transportation is required to compete with other forms on the basis of inherent service advantages and true economic costs."

The government will pay about $1 million dollars in airline subsidies for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Woman is Awarded $15,000 Judgment For Auto Injuries

Lucille Gibbons of Marion was awarded a $15,000 judgment from Pedro H. Gusentine of Chicago for personal injuries in her lawsuit against Gusentine and Roderick D. Harris of Carrier Mills in Williamson county circuit court yesterday and the jury found Harris not guilty of negligence.

Atty. Don Scott of Harrisburg defended Harris in the lawsuit, the Marion law firm, Franklin and Garrison represented Gusentine and Lucille Gibbons was represented by Atty. Ralph Harris of Marion.

Judge C. Ross Reynolds presided during the trial.

PMW Asks Gov. Stratton to Help Jobless Miners

SPRINGFIELD (U) — Gov. William G. Stratton has been asked to take action to help jobless Illinois coal miners.

A delegation of Progressive Mine Workers officers and state legislators from south-central Illinois visited the chief executive Wednesday to voice their appeals for aid.

William Crompton, Springfield, who is president of the independent mine union, said 4,000 PMW members are out of work and there aren't enough jobs in other fields to keep them employed.

He said that in Macoupin, Madison and Montgomery counties only one big mine is still working. Superior Coal Co. announced only Tuesday it was closing its No. 4 mine near Gillespie, the last of its four mines in that area, due to a lack of coal consumption.

John Marchando, a former PMW president, said the delegation urged Stratton to seek a declaration designating Gillespie as a disaster area to allow unemployed to get surplus food and clothing.

The group also called for an increase in unemployment compensation, now paid at a rate of $27 a week for a maximum of 26 weeks.

The small worms, she explained, first eat the wheat blades, then work up to the head.

The only known invasion of any size in the area was on the McCue farmlands but there were reports of the worm on other farms.

Wilburn Joiner, sales manager for the pest control company at Carbondale, said that spraying had been done on the Garner, Jones, Craig, Wagner and Carter farms north of Eldorado in Rector township. Some spraying also has been done north of Ridgway it was reported.

Pilot of the plane spraying the acreages in this county is Frank Doos of Carbondale. Toxophene is used on the army worm and a compound called BHC is being used on an English grain aphid which also is being found on some wheat.

Farmers have been urged to make inspections of their wheat crops and if they find evidence of army worms and seek spraying by plane, they can contact the Saline Air Service at Harrisburg Phone

Aerial Warfare Used to Combat Army Worms on Saline County Farm Lands

A destructive army has entered 806 and details can be learned. Saline county and aerial warfare has been called upon to combat the invading host.

It's the army worm, the larva of a certain noctuid moth and these worms travel in great armies, destroying grass, grain and other crops.

So far the greater masses have been confined to the northeast and the east parts of the counties, but where they've struck they have begun their destructive eating on wheat crops and the remedy chosen to eliminate these little worms scarcely more than an inch long is spray them by airplane.

The Saline Air Service at the Harrisburg-Raleigh Airport reported that a plane from the Midwestern Weed and Pest Control, Inc., of Carbondale, was spraying wheat fields on the J. E. McCue farm lands in Cottage Township Tuesday, so a Daily Register reporter went to the scene.

Mrs. McCue said that about 500 acres of her land, all in Saline County, were involved in the spraying, and that she expected the spray job to kill the worms before the crop was taken.

The small worms, she explained, first eat the wheat blades, then work up to the head.

The only known invasion of any size in the area was on the McCue farmlands but there were reports of the worm on other farms.

Angry Dispute Occurs Over Use of Letter

McCarthy is Accused Of 'Criminal Means' in Obtaining Gov't Data

WASHINGTON (U) — Sen. John L. McClellan today accused Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of obtaining classified government data "through criminal means" as the Army-McCarthy hearings generated one of their angriest scenes.

McCarthy roared back this challenge:

"If any administration wants to indict me, they can go ahead and indict."

McCarthy accused McClellan (D-Ark.) and his Democrat colleagues sitting in the Army-McCarthy hearings of in effect notifying two million government workers "they think it is a crime to give the chairman McCarthy... evidence of treason."

"I'd like to notify them that I think no loyalty to a superior officer can tower above their loyalty to their country."

Wrangle Concerns FBI Letter
The angry exchange concerned the unauthorized "FBI letter" which McCarthy introduced earlier in the hearings, and which he said was brought to him by a young Army intelligence officer.

Republicans on the hearing subcommittee sat in silence while the scene in the Senate Office Building caucus room raged on, although Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) made several tentative attempts to cut it short on grounds it was "irrelevant."

Ray M. Cohn, chief counsel for McCarthy's investigating subcommittee, was in the witness chair giving the first testimony for his side.

Summary of Charges
Cohn testified the essence of the charges the McCarthy side laid down against Army officials were in three portions.

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and Army counselor John G. Adams tried to block the McCarthy subcommittee from investigating communism in the service; they tried to discredit the subcommittee's work; they tried to prevent McCarthy's group from questioning members of the Loyalty Screening Board.

Cohn said Adams first broached last October the idea of ending the subcommittee's hearings on alleged subversives in the secret radar laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

He said Adams suggested devising "some formula" for turning the inquiry over to the Army. Adams, he said, felt it would be "a more pleasant arrangement" for Stevens and would "solidify his (Adams') position" as Army counselor.

"I think he said it would be 'a feather in his cap,'" Cohn recalled. "There was no direct request," Cohn said. "But he made it clear

Property Owners Seek Damages from Mining Companies

Two residents of Carrier Mills township have named the Blue Bird, Delta and Carmac coal companies as defendants in law suits which contend impurities from the mines have contaminated water which flows into their farms.

Complaints in one suit are W. A. Leach and Myrla J. Leach, in the other Fred Curtner and Margaret Curtner.

Both complaints charge that impurities in the water have made it unfit for stock and that land has been damaged at times of overflow. Both are asking $6,000 from each of the defendants.

The complaints were filed by Atty. James W. Sanders of Marion.

New Salem State Park Heads Travel Suggestion for 'See Illinois Now'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Beautiful New Salem State Park where Abraham Lincoln first left his imprint upon the pages of history more than a century ago, heads the list of travel suggestions this week in Governor William G. Stratton's program to encourage residents of the state to "See Illinois Now."

New Salem State Park is located in Menard county on State Routes 123 and 97 and is approximately 20 miles northwest of Springfield. Because of its central location in the state it is accessible for a one day motor trip from almost any point in Illinois.

Reproduced in flawless authenticity at New Salem State Park is the village where Abraham Lincoln spent six years of his life. It was at New Salem in 1831 that Lincoln began as a clerk in a store, started his own ill-fated business venture as a storekeeper, served as postmaster, met Ann Rutledge, served in voluntary militia forces, and was elected to the Illinois State Legislature as a member of the House.

"The restored Lincoln Village at New Salem State Park is regarded as the most impressive of all the historic memorials in the nation," Governor Stratton says in urging residents of the state to visit the area. "It will serve the people of Illinois and the nation for many generations to come as a great source of inspiration."

If you plan your trip to New Salem between August 13 and August 22 you will be able to visit the Illinois State Fair at Springfield. The fair, which will be 102 years old this year, is the world's largest agricultural exposition and one of the southern the three largest fairs in the country.

Other places suggested this week for travel in connection with the "See Illinois Now" program include Blackhawk State Park near Rock Island - Moline; Kickapoo State Park near Danville; Crab Orchard Lake near Carbondale and Kankakee River State Park near Kankakee.

Brief descriptions of the various parks follow:

BLACK HAWK STATE PARK is located on State Route 2 at the south edge of the city of Rock Island. It is one of the oldest recreational areas in the middle west and once served as a settlement for Indian tribes. Black Hawk, one of the most famous of the Indian Chiefs, was born and raised in the area.

KICKAPOO STATE PARK is in Vermilion county near Danville on State Route 10. In addition to its many small lakes the park provides much in scenic beauty. Facilities for boating, fishing, camping, riding and other outdoor activities also are available.

Student Receives Notice of Failure by Mistake, Kills Self

LOS ANGELES — A 15-year-old honor student shot and killed himself after a notice of failing mathematics grades was sent to him by mistake.

Police said the student, Joe Simpson, shot himself Wednesday with a .22 rifle which his father, C. Clarence Simpson, had given him last September for his excellent work in school.

The note was intended for Joel Simpson, whose name was the victim's except for one letter. Both were students at Mount Vernon High School.

The note read in part: "Joel plays a good deal, disturbs children by him. Rarely works in class. Has not handed in his notebook."

The victim's parents, who also have two daughters, said they found their son lying in his room with a bullet wound in his head.

Mount Vernon Principal Hazelle Motors said she "could not understand" how the note was sent to the wrong boy.

Religious Groups Hit Methods of Anti-Red Drives

By United Press

Delegates and speakers to two big Protestant conventions have joined in charging that some anti-Communist campaigns have made many Americans afraid to say what they think.

The most dramatic action came Wednesday when delegates to the American Baptist convention at Minneapolis, Minn., unanimously criticized those "so intent upon combating the menace of Communism" that they adopt Red methods themselves.

At the same time Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of Christ Methodist Church in New York, told the fourth assembly of Methodist women at Milwaukee, Wis., that "it would be difficult to secure signers for the Declaration of Independence" today.

The Baptists in a unanimous standing vote approved a resolution which condemned two types of tyranny threatening basic human rights.

"One is the tyranny which seems to respect neither God, nor man, nor truth and finds expression in forms of Communism," the resolution said. "The clear duty of the church is to offer stern moral resistance to his avowed enemy by every lawful means."

However, the Baptists also attacked another "tyranny" which respects "neither rights of individuals nor democratic processes."

"There are individuals and groups in American life so intent upon combatting the menace of Communism that they adopt the very principles and methods which make Communism itself so frightening," the resolution said.

"They attack nonconformity as subversive, make no distinction between dissent and disloyalty, confuse disagreement with disaffection, equate accusation with guilt," the resolution continued. "Truth is slanted for ulterior purposes or submerged in suspicion and fear."

Dr. Sockman said many Americans have a "fear psychosis" that they will be accused of subversive connections.

"Churchmen are becoming afraid to lend their names to any movements, however good, lest they be labelled subversive later," he said.

HTHS Senior Girl Receives Watch from Winkelman Jewelry Store

The clock stopped on the name of Carol Thaxton and Miss Thaxton will receive a brand new Gruen wristwatch from the Winkelman jewelry store.

Upon the clock were the names of the students graduating from HTHS this week. The clock was fully wound May 18 and around and around the hand went in the Winkelman show window. It finally ran down at 2:22 p. m. yesterday, stopping on Carol's name.

This is the fifth consecutive year that Claude Winkelman, proprietor, has awarded a wristwatch in this manner.

Predict Court Battle Over Control of NYC

ALBANY, N. Y. — A long court battle to decide whether financier Robert R. Young or President William White will control the New York Central Railroad loomed today.

Whichever side loses is sure to take the issue of challenged proxies into court, a high legal source said.

The start of such court action will depend, the source said, on when the tabulation of stockholders' votes shows a "winning trend."

Three law professors with a staff of attorneys and accountants representing the Young and White forces began counting the millions of proxies at 11:22 a. m. more than two hours later than the scheduled time.

They will work 11 hours a day through the Memorial Day weekend in an effort to have the final tally ready by noon next Tuesday, when the Central's recessed stockholders meeting resumes. If the figures aren't complete then, another recess will be taken.

New York Central general counsel Harold H. McLean indicated the railroad would go no further in its legal action to prevent voting of the "pivotal" 800,000 shares of stock owned by Texas multi-millionaires Clint W. Murchison and Sid W. Richardson. The Texans are Young supporters.

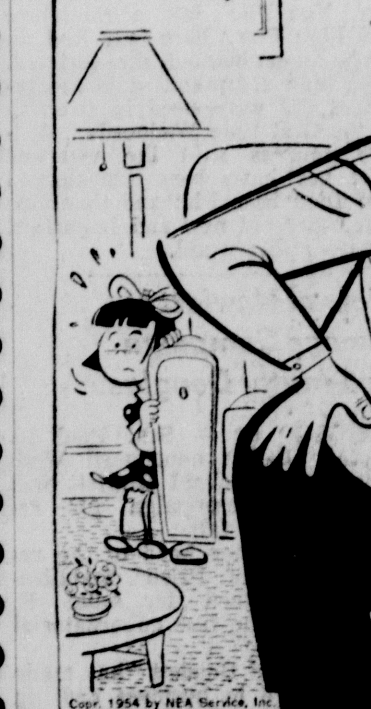

"There would be no sense in carrying that action any further," McLean said. However these shares are certain to be the center of any new court action involving challenged proxies.

The ballot counting went on behind padlocked doors, guarded by railroad police.

3 U.S. B36's on Good Will Flight To Nicaragua

By United Press

Three 10-engine American atomic bombers roared out of the darkness at Fort Worth, Tex., today on an unprecedented "good will" flight over Nicaragua, next-door neighbor of Communist-influenced Guatemala.

Brig. Gen. John D. Ryan, commander of the 19th Air Division, took off in the lead plane from Carswell Air Force base at 2:15 a. m. EDT and the other two super-bombers followed at eight-minute intervals.

The non-stop trip was expected to last about 17½ hours, giving the B36's at least 30 minutes in Nicaraguan skies.

Defense Department spokesmen said officially the flight was a good will mission in observance of Nicaraguan Army Day, made at the request of the South American government. The United States never before had received such a request from a foreign government on the occasion of a state holiday.

The flight was ordered only a few days after the United States had airlifted a small amount of arms and ammunition to Nicaragua and Honduras after Guatemala received 2,000 tons of war-making material from European Communists.

Guatemalan exiles in Mexico City reported Wednesday night that in addition to the widely-publicized Iron Curtain arms shipment, Guatemala also received five Soviet-built MKG-15 jet fighters, accompanied by "European-type" aviators from an unidentified cargo ship.

Special Counsel Ray H. Jenkins
asked if Stevens or Adams mentioned unfair or distorted newspaper stories about the inquiry.
"They did not," Cohn said.

Cohn also said Stevens and Adams were present at some of the press briefings and "I can recall no statement of protest from either of them."

Jenkins asked if Cohn ever gave
"distorted briefings to the press."
"I don't think so, sir," Cohn replied.

Cohn and McClellan disclosed that the subcommittee's investigation of communism in the Army stemmed from a document supplied by Paul Crouch, an admitted former Communist leader.

It was revelation of this document—which the subcommittee Democrats apparently had never heard about—that led up to the row between McCarthy and Mc-Clellan.

When Cohn first mentioned the Crouch memorandum without identifying its author, McClellan cut in to ask for details. Cohn said the subcommittee staff received it in March, 1953.

McClellan cut in to ask for details.

Cohn said he was reluctant to discuss the report or say who prepared it.

When McClellan insisted he had the right to know as a subcommittee member, the subcommittee took a recess to allow Cohn to consult with McCarthy.

The recess, ordered for two minutes, stretched out to 20 while Mc-Carthy and Cohn went to the senator's office. McCarthy eventually identified the author of the memorandum on communism in the Army as Paul Crouch, an admitted former Communist leader.

Cohn testified Crouch is now a consultant to the U. S. immigration service. He has testified in numerous trials and investigations of alleged communists.

Convicted While in Army Crouch once was convicted of subversive activities while in the Army.

The late McClellan lectured Cohn. McClellan said Democratic subcommittee members have not been receiving all the information they should have about subcommittee investigations.

McCarthy went to Cohn's defense in a hurry. He said subcommittee information was available to all subcommittee members. "Democratic and Republican," he assured McClellan that, once subcommittee work started again, he would be furnished all the information he wanted.

Democrats Rally
Sens. Stuart W. Symington (D-
Mo.) and Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) jumped to McClellan's aid in the tempestuous outbreak.

Symington, former Air Force secretary, said he would "hate to think" that Army, Navy or Air Force employees who have "a grudge against their superior" can be coaxed into giving away vital secrets.

When today's hearings started Symington served notice Democratic members of the committee reserve the right to demand that McCarthy staff director Francis P.
Carr be called as a witness later.

The subcommittee Wednesday overrode Democratic protests and eliminated Carr and Asst. Defense Secretary H. Struve Hensel as "principals" in the case. Symington said today it is "absolutely unthinkable" to conclude the hearings without quizzing Carr.

Amid angry Democratic cries of "a slick whitewash," the subcommittee voted 4-3 on straight party lines Wednesday to toss out Army charges against Carr, Mc-Carthy subcommittee staff director, and McCarthy's charges against Assistant Defense Secretary H. Struve Hensel.

The Army had accused Carr, of using "improper means" to secure favorable treatment for a drafted former McCarthy aide, Pvt. G.
David Schine. Carr also figured in McCarthy's countercharge—that the Army tried to "blackmail" him out of an investigation of Army communists.

McCarthy had accused Hensel of "masterminding" the Army's charges. He also accused Hensel of "misconduct and possible law violation" in connection with a ship supply firm during World War II.

No Decision Yet on Site for AF Academy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force says no decision has yet been reached on a site for its new air academy.

The five-man site selection board met again Wednesday to discuss technical data on various proposed sites, a spokesman said.

He said there was "no indication of how soon the board expects to reach a decision."

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Paul H.
Douglas (D-Ill.) announced Wednesday that Michael Howlett will manage his campaign for re-election in the fall.

Howlett, former head of the regional office of Price Stabilization, campaigned for Adlai E.
Stevenson in the 1948 gubernatorial race.

Douglas said Howlett "has made a fine record in business and in public office, and is both competent and fearlessly honest."

that if some way could be found for such an arrangement it would be welcome news to Mr. Stevens and Mr. Adams.

Committee Prompts Suspensions
Cohn said before the committee began its Ft. Monmouth investigations, suspension of security risks
there "was zero."

Once the committee got underway, he said, 35 employees were suspended. Of these, he said, one has been returned with full security clearance, and the other 34 are still suspended or have been given non-security jobs.

Both Stevens and Adams have testified they did not object to continuation of the Ft. Monmouth investigation—although they would have preferred to have it taken over by the Army—but they did object to the newspaper publicity on it. They blamed McCarthy, who advised reporters at the end of secret sessions about what had happened.

At lunch in New York last Oct.
13, Cohn said, Adams and Stevens questioned whether the hearings had to be held and asked "whether there was some way of . . . letting the Army do the job."

Special Counsel Ray H. Jenkins
asked if Stevens or Adams mentioned unfair or distorted newspaper stories about the inquiry.
"They did not," Cohn said.

Cohn also said Stevens and Adams were present at some of the

Eldorado Community Development Ass'n Formed to Put Action in City Program

A newly-formed Eldorado Community Development association was working today to put knowledge into action following six months of study and research in that town's "Operation Bootstrap" program.

Townpeople attending the weekly "Bootstrap" assembly Monday night adopted a constitution and agreed to "stick together to work for a better Eldorado."

"Now more than ever we need the full cooperation of everybody," Richard W. Poston, chairman of the department of community development at Southern Illinois university, told the group. "This entire program is based on faith, on the idea that if men and women in America are willing to analyze what they have, what their problems are and how to solve them, no problems are too great."

The preamble to the association's constitution reads:

"We the people of the community of Eldorado, Illinois, who have joined our hearts, our heads and our hands in the study phase of the Eldorado Community Development program, have learned:

- a. to recognize and acknowledge our imperfections,
- b. that no single fault is incapable of being remedied to a degree, at least,
- c. that by unity and effort we may accomplish much that could not be effected by a single endeavor, and
- d. that by a proper understanding of one another we are better able to plan and work together toward the goal of community development."

Since the weekly town meetings of "Bootstrap" started last Dec. 15 committees investigating Eldorado's needs have made recommendations for improving everything from the sewage system to the appearance of vacant buildings.

The industry committee has already damage on the ship's exterior.

Screams echoed in the compartments where men were trapped. The noise was compounded by clanging alarm bells and the shouts of half-naked sailors who battled to save their shipmates.

Lt. (JG) John S. Wollam of Pittsburgh was hurled from his bed to the deck of his cabin, naked. He dashed into the passageway, borrowed a pair of trousers and grabbed a heavy-duty gas mask.

"I began looking for people," he said. "I tried to go down a forward hatch. I started to pick up a man at the bottom but he was dead. His skin was shredded off him like a peach."

Helicopters Remove Victims

Even before the stricken vessel reached Quonset, seven helicopters had flown out to bring the more seriously injured ashore. The time-saving technique developed in Korea probably saved many lives, according to hospital officials.

When the carrier reached port, the dock was piled high with coffins. A corps of medical air men waited to receive the ship's grim cargo.

Since Quonset is the home port of the Bennington, scores of wives, mothers and sweethearts were at the base, waiting anxiously to learn the fate of their loved ones.

Burned Beyond Recognition

The grisly task of identifying the dead lasted into the night. Some bodies were charred so badly fingerprints were indistinguishable. Dental charts were used as a last resort.

The Bennington left Norfolk, Va., on Monday for Newport where it was scheduled to rendezvous with a task force and take midshipmen on their annual training cruise.

The death toll was the second highest in peacetime naval history. Some 176 were killed in the collision of the carrier Wasp and destroyer Hobson April 26, 1952.

Only seven months ago, another carrier was involved in a similar catastrophe. A catapult mechanism explosion killed 37 on the Leyte while it lay at its moorings in Boston.

Order FBI Probe of Gov't Employees Invoking 5th Amendment

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today ordered FBI investigation of government employees who invoke the Fifth Amendment in security cases.

It has been government practice to refer such cases to the FBI since last October when an executive order was issued citing invocation of the Fifth Amendment as grounds for dismissal.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said today's order merely formalizes the practice.

Search for Crippled Mountaineer, Marooned 12 Days

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A two-man rescue team toiled up North America's highest mountain today, searching for a crippled mountaineer who has been marooned 12 days.

The mountaineer, George Argus, lay huddled in a tent somewhere along the 11,000-foot level of Mt. McKinley. He was unable to move from the hips down and his food supply was due to give out some time today.

Argus was one of a four-man University of Alaska climbing party which conquered the 20,300-foot peak by a new route, only to meet tragedy on the way down.

One of the climbers, Elton Thayer, of Reedsburg, Wis., slipped at the 13,000 foot level, pulling the other three with him.

Geneva Won't Be Another Yalta, After All: Dennen; French Turn Against Russia

By LEON DENNEN NEA Staff Correspondent GENEVA — (NEA) — The Geneva conference on Korea and Indo-China is not going to be another Munich or Yalta after all.

As the tortuous discussions on Southeast Asia shift to Washington, London, Paris and back to Geneva, it becomes increasingly clear that the Reds are not going to gain the easy diplomatic victory they hoped for.

With the anti-Communist powers at odds on many major issues, Russia's Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov and Red China's Premier Chou En-lai have only themselves to blame for their failure.

Because of their outright brutality and "revolutionary" rigidity they failed to exploit in time the rift in the Western ranks. Their loss is the free world's gain. Now the diplomatic tide is beginning to turn.

Even in France there has been a dramatic awakening since the Dien Bien Phu military disaster. Grief and bitterness against the Communists is only a mild description of the ordinary Frenchman's state of mind.

Premier Joseph Laniel's weak and vacillating government, it is true, continues to hang on like a broken branch after a hurricane. It is doomed to fall — if not this week then the next or the week after.

"But even should the government collapse there is no longer any danger that a new government will solicit Communist votes," a top U. S. diplomatic observer told NEA Service.

"For the first time in months there is a deepening gulf separating the Reds from the French people," the diplomat said.

Since Dien Bien Phu the Reds stand exposed as the real enemies of France—enemies of the Frenchmen who gave their blood and lives in Indo-China.

Even Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and the most optimistic among the Western diplomats are beginning to realize that in Geneva—as during the recent Berlin talks—the Reds and the free world do not play the same game, speak the same language or seek the same goals.

It took Molotov and Chou En-lai to reveal to them the bitter truth—that a diplomatic bazaar involving the Reds can only end in deadlock or distaste for the West.

"Will, then, the Western powers take advantage of this new wave of anti-Red revulsion particularly in France?" Communist experts in Geneva ask.

Will the U. S., Britain and France—even while continuing their haggling with Molotov and

8 Teams Open Play for State Baseball Title

PEORIA — Eight school-boy teams open fire at Woodruff Field today for the 1954 Illinois high school baseball crown.

Survivors of a field of 368 teams clash in four first-round games today and tonight, with semi-finals Friday afternoon and the game that will decide the championship Friday night.

Peoria Central faced Litchfield in the curtain-raiser, followed by Anna-Jonesboro's tilt with Chicago Bowen. Tonight New Trier tackles Thornton Fractional and Peoria Manual takes on Belleville.

Will Crown New Champ

One thing is certain about the tournament—a new state champion will be crowned. Maywood of Proviso, the 1953 victor, was eliminated in the playoff rounds which led to the finals this year.

Belleville, a three-time titlist, was regarded as one of the best bets to pocket the laurels. A strong pitching staff helped the Maroons chalk up a fine 21-3 won-loss record going into the tournament.

Belleville's mound ace is Lefty Roney Wagner, who has won 11 games without a loss including a no-hitter and four one-run games. Wagner hasn't been scored on in his last 42 innings on the hill.

Another tournament threat was New Trier, runnerup in the 1953 American Legion national championship tournament. The Winnetka nine chalked up 21 victories and suffered only two losses this season.

Names to Recall Three familiar names are in the New Trier lineup—catcher-pitcher Chuck Lindstrom, first baseman Don McNeil Jr., and third baseman Mike Layden.

Lindstrom is the son of Freddie Lindstrom, who played in the major leagues with the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants. McNeil's father is a radio star and Layden is the son of Elmer Layden, one-time Notre Dame great.

Mathematically, Peoria has the best chance of flying the title pennant, with two teams in the tournament. Peoria Central entered the Litchfield fray with a 20-6 mark and Peoria Manual with 20-5.

Extension Courses Offered by SIU and U. of Illinois

An extension course in landscape gardening will be offered by Southern Illinois university at Eldorado late in August. County School Superintendent R. Dale Wilson announced today.

The course, Agriculture 304, will be taught by Lowell Tucker from August 16 to 27 at the Washington school. Classes will be held from 7:45 a. m. until noon five days a week and three fourths of an hour credit will be given. Tuition fee is $6.75.

Any high school graduates can take the course. The University of Illinois is offering a course, First Aid-Health Education E281 at Benton this summer starting June 7. First class meeting will be at 9 a. m. and all others from 7:30 a. m. until 12:30 p. m. It will be held at Benton high school Mondays through Fridays for two weeks and two semester hours credit will be given. The tuition is $15.50 and each student should take a check or money order payable to the University of Illinois to the first meeting.

Prof. Warren J. Huffman will teach the course, designed to satisfy Red Cross requirements for both the standard and advanced courses in first aid. It covers control of bleeding, artificial respiration, poisoning, wounds, burns, fractures, dislocations, and other phases of first aid. Each student should bring a 36 or 40 inch triangular bandage to the first meeting of the class.

Vince Martinez TKO's Chuck Davey in 7th

CHICAGO — Victorious Vince Martinez called today for a shot at the welterweight title while his technical knockout victim, Chuck Davey, faced retirement.

"Chuck is through," says Davey's manager, Hee Knowles, after Wednesday night's one-sided televised fight in which the now-defunct TV idol was floored three times and stopped in the seventh round. Davey wouldn't agree immediately—he wants a little time to think it over.

"I don't want to make up my mind now," said Davey. "I'm going home Thursday and maybe Friday or Saturday I'll decide."

But Knowles repeated, "He is through. He won't take that Los Angeles match with Art Aragon (scheduled for July 1)."

In contrast to Davey's dejection, Martinez was beaming and brimming with confidence in the wake of his easy triumph. With a breezy air, he asked for a shot at welter champ Kid Gavilan and predicted he'd beat him.

"Gavilan doesn't move too well," said the Paterson, N. J., scrapper who currently is not even ranked among the top 10 in the welter division.

Martinez, a 2-1 betting choice, found the plying, dancing Davey an easy target for his smashing right hands. Davey went down once in the first round, twice in the third, and once in the sixth—one of those times in the third round from a slip.

Pafko Paces Braves to Ninth Straight Victory; Cubs Pound Cardinals, 15 to 5

By CARL LUNDQUIST United Press Staff Writer

Knocky Pafko has been beamed, and slowed up by pulled leg muscles, but the slugging outfielder from Boyceville, Wis., still was the moving spirit of the first place Milwaukee Braves today.

Andy, the handy dandy, who never hits 300, never sets the pace in runs batted in or in homers, nevertheless comes through with those clutch touch hits that win key ball games.

Wednesday night it was Pafko who stretched Milwaukee's winning streak to nine games with his fourth hit, a single that brought in Danny O'Connell, who had doubled for a 7-6 victory over Cincinnati. Pafko drove in two runs and scored a pair himself.

When the Braves dealt pitchers Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle to the Giants last winter for Bobby Thomson it figured that Pafko might have to move to the bench, at least occasionally. Now with Thomson still out indefinitely with his broken ankle, Pafko is carrying the load.

Moreover, the Braves are putting the lie to the critics who said they gave up too much pitching in the Thomson deal.

Wednesday night, young Gene Conley pitched his fourth victory against a lone defeat for the Braves, putting him even with Chet Nichols (4-3) in victories. Nichols and Conley were the pitchers replacing Liddle and Antonelli, who at this stage last season each had a 2-1 record. Thus Conley and Nichols overall now are 8-4 as against 6-2 at the same period for the men they replaced.

Roberts Beats Bums Robin Roberts finally ended his seven-game losing streak against the Dodgers, beating them 8-6 with the aid of five runs driven in by Del Ennis. The Giants took over America's No. 1 energy resource—bituminous coal—is produced by more than 5,000 competing companies owned by thousands of "average citizen" stockholders.

Without detracting a bit from the obvious debt of gratitude we owe those men and women, we might also appropriately pause a moment that day to think of an even larger casualty and fatality list—the more than one million persons who have lost their lives on our streets and highways since 1900.

Traffic fatalities in just 53 years are greater than the loss of life in all the wars our country has fought, including Korea. In 1953 alone, the toll was 38,200, a figure that is higher than the populations of 79 of Illinois' 102 counties.

This Memorial day, let's give a moment's thought to those lives so needlessly cut short. And let's, by our own driving, by the use of care, caution and courtesy, make sure we don't add to the present total—either our own life or that of someone else.

Charge Smear by GOP Factions in Foundations Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio) today charged that a House investigation of tax-free foundations is a deliberate attempt by one group of Republicans to "smear" another group of Republicans close to President Eisenhower.

"This whole thing," Hays told reporters, "is a deliberately designed smear of the Eisenhower administration by impugning certain people who are known to be close to the President or high up in the administration like the Fords, Paul Hoffman and the Rockefeller."

Committee Chairman B. Carroll Reece (R-Tenn.) promptly denied the charges.

"It's another diversionary move on his part to frustrate the hearings," Reece said, referring to Hays.

Reece is a former GOP national chairman and staunch supporter of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio). His investigation is aimed at finding out whether tax-free foundations like those of Ford, Rockefeller and Carnegie have helped subversive causes. Hoffman is a former head of the Ford Foundation and was an early supporter of Mr. Eisenhower for the presidency.

GOP Confused, Stevenson Says

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson said Wednesday night that Republicans, caught between "apathy and McCarthy," have disrupted national policy and touched off a "constitutional crisis" with their president.

While "Republican free-booters have raked their president for and aft" we have on the other hand "a distasteful spectacle of paralysis" — the Army-McCarthy hearings, he said.

The Democrats' 1952 presidential nominee addressed a huge jamboree climaxing National Hill-billy Music Day in his first formal speech since his convalescence from a kidney operation.

Stevenson chided Republicans on their role in the feud between Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and the Army.

"They act as confused as a blind dog in a meat house," he said. "And this is little to be wondered at, seeing that the Republican Party has as many wings as a boarding house chicken."

He said the nation now appears to have three "secretaries of state" — Secretary John Foster Dulles, Vice President Richard Nixon and Senate Majority Leader William Knowland.

After hearing Dulles' foreign policy "overtaken by a quite different proclamation by 'Secretary of state Nixon' and this in turn contradicted by 'secretary of state Knowland,'" he said, "I can understand the advantages of dealing with one government instead of several."

Auditor's Office Plans Meetings to Explain City Audits

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The state auditor's office today planned a series of meetings to explain a 1953 municipal audit law to city officials.

The meetings were announced at a new conference Tuesday by State Auditor Orville E. Hodge. Hodge said the new audit law was designed to help give the Legislature an accurate picture of city financial conditions.

He said his office and the Illinois Municipal League are sponsoring the meetings Thursday at Ottawa, Friday at Oak Park, June 8 at Mattoon, June 9 at Mount Vernon, and June 10 at Jacksonville.

The law requires audits by downstate cities to be turned in by Hodge's office, which will publish annual city financial reports.

These reports will be available to the Legislature and others.

These reports may show cities "shouldn't be hamstrung with more legislation," Hodge said, or they might show cities aren't "doing right" on some things.

He said the audit by his office of the University of Illinois' books won't be ready until about July 10. He said he had hoped to announce the report Tuesday.

Hodge said the U. of I. audit may show the need for "one or two corrective" changes in the law on the university's spending, to make the financial situation more clear and show "where these revolving funds revolve."

Christine Baker Returns with Parents From Germany; Enjoys School Picnic

By Alta Porter

The most thrilled of the children attending McKinley school's annual picnic Wednesday was Miss Christine Baker, 11 years old Wednesday, who arrived home Saturday from Germany. Christine was a pupil at McKinley school until last September when she went to Germany to join her parents, Lt. Col. George E. Crane and his wife, Virginia. Mrs. Crane, mother of Christine, is the former Virginia Cummings Baker, and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cummings of Ingram Hill.

She and Col. Crane, staff judge advocate in Frankfurt am Main, Germany, were married in Germany last spring, having met while Mrs. Crane was teaching at the school for children of Army officers in Frankfurt.

Col. Crane, who had been in Germany for four years, having accompanied the Fourth Division there to relieve occupation forces, has completed his tour of foreign duties and will be stationed at Fort Eustis, near Williamsburg, Va., this summer.

Wonderful Experience

Mrs. Crane was in Germany for 22 months, and Christine was there for nine months.

The time spent in Europe has been a wonderful experience for the Cranes. They have seen Frankfurt practically destroyed after being 70 per cent destroyed by World War 2 bombings. The country around Frankfurt is one of green meadows and the citizens of the area are thrifty, industrious and friendly, Mrs. Crane said. Frankfurt is filled with new buildings and automobiles leading the beautiful autobahn highways from the city.

As a result of the industry of the citizens and cultivation of every inch of soil, and the funds for food made available from the United States, there has been no rationing in this part of Germany, Mrs. Crane said.

KNOW YOUR FORMER NEIGHBOR: Few Women Equal Record of Dr. Ruth Martin, Dental Professor

This is the second in a series of articles on former Harrisburg natives who have achieved success in their various fields of endeavor.

Women dentists are not to be found in every city of our country, and when one ascends the ladder of success to the heights achieved by Dr. Ruth Elizabeth Martin, a native of Harrisburg, it is truly noteworthy.

In fact, it might be said that when Ruth Martin received her D. D. S. degree from Washington University's School of Dentistry, St. Louis, in 1923, women dentists were "as scarce as hen's teeth."

Of course, during the past three decades, many more women have entered the dental profession throughout the land, but few, if any, have equalled the record of the Harrisburg girl who climbed the rocky road to success and recognition as an authority on dental pediatrics in the midwest.

Dr. Martin is presently serving as professor of dental pediatrics in the school from which she graduated 31 years ago. She is also consultant in dentistry at the School of Medicine, and a member of Barnes, City and Homer Phillips hospitals consulting staffs.

Born December 30, 1898, the daughter of James Russell and Mary Ellen (Burns) Martin, she passed through life's early years in the normal fashion. The old Martin home place was located on the corner of Church and Jackson streets.

Although Dr. Martin confesses that "memory fails her" as to her high school activities and honors, she lists "school days of work and play" as some of the more memorable of her years spent in Harrisburg. Schoolmates recall her as a very talented whistler and a fine chum.

Her brother, Herman, a resident of Fairfield, and a sister, Merle, who is now Mrs. E. L. Anderson, of Redding, Calif., will also be remembered by residents here.

After graduating from Harrisburg Township high school with the class of 1915, she entered Washington university Dr. Martin has been quoted as saying that she "just happened" to enter the dental school because as a liberal arts freshman she discovered the courses she enjoyed most were the sciences required of pre-dental students. At any rate, it was a fortunate day for dentistry and children.

Upon completing her work at the university in 1923, she entered private practice for a while, but in 1927 she became a full-time member of the dental faculty, rising through the academic ranks from instructor to assistant professor, then associate professor and finally to full professorship of dental pediatrics in 1945.

Excerpts from a feature story appearing in an issue of the St. Louis Star-Times in 1947 related these things about her:

"Children aren't going to grow up with crooked teeth or other dental deformities if Dr. Ruth Martin of Washington university school of Dentistry can help it. Her goal in life is to train more and more general dentists to give dental care to children and to educate parents about dental health. Professor of dental pediatrics in the university's school of dentistry, Dr. Martin has headed the children's clinic since it started in 1934.

"A pretty, blue-eyed woman with hair which has been white since she was in her 20's, Dr. Martin is modest about her reputation as a leader in children's dentistry. Dentists in many states send patients to her for consultation, and she is in demand as a speaker at dental conventions all over the country.

"Far from regretting her choice (to become a dentist), she thinks dentistry is an excellent field for women and deprecates the fact that there are not more women dentists."

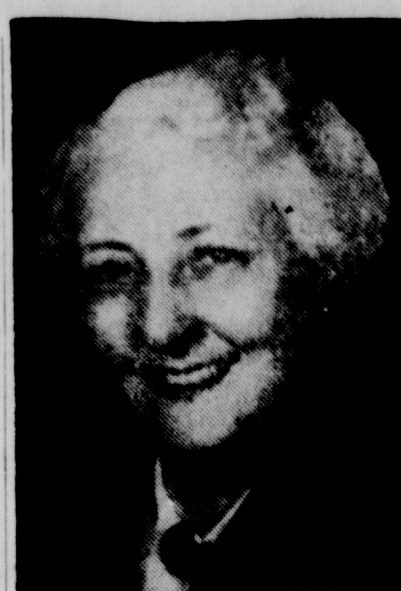

A few of her achievements listed in "Who's Who in America" are: "Professor, Washington university, school of dentistry, 1945; president W. U. dental alumni association 1946; member American Academy of Pedodontics, Federal International Assn., dental research, American Society Dentistry for Children (treas. 1947-48), American Assn. Advancement of Science, Diplomate American Board of Pedodontics, American Dental Assn., Missouri State Assn., St. Louis Dental Society, Pi Beta Phi (social fraternity), Upsilon Alpha (women's dental frat.), and Amicor's dental frat., (honorary dental fraternity)."

She is also one of the first women in the country to be elected as a Fellow in the American College of Dentists. Her most recent honor has been her election to the chairmanship of the St. Louis Section.

No reason why a woman couldn't be president. There are a lot of good golfers among the fair sex.

tion of the American College of Dentists. This honor came last January. She is the only woman member of the St. Louis section, having that distinction for the past four years.

In May 1947, Dr. Martin was selected by the Group Action Council of Metropolitan St. Louis as a Woman of Achievement and received honors along with a number of others for the various contributions of local and national interest on St. Louis Women of Achievement night "as one of the most outstanding representatives in the field of dentistry."

Truly, Harrisburg and all South-eastern Illinois can be very proud of Dr. Ruth Elizabeth Martin, Woman of Dentistry.

SPRINGFIELD — Safety warnings to Illinois motorists for the coming Memorial Day weekend were issued today by the state police and other groups interested in promoting highway safety.

State Police Chief Phil M. Brown told motorists to reduce speed and "exercise that extra amount of courtesy that may mean the difference between a serious or fatal accident and no accident at all."

R. V. May, chairman of the Illinois Petroleum Industry, grimly warned holidaying motorists of the slogan, "Slow down and live."

PETER EDSON'S Washington News Notebook

Time's Up... Mamie to the Rescue... White House Spies... Shopper's Convoy... Number, Please?

WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Eisenhower's appointment secretary, Tom Stephens, still has trouble when he gets warmed up on conversation with some visitor and wrecks the tight schedule laid out for him daily.

One recent example occurred when a group from the national veterans' organizations came in to discuss the Republican Party's new vets' division to be headed by Martin B. Buckner of Flint, Mich. He is a former bomber pilot and an American Legion official.

The group wandered off on the subject of some military decision General Eisenhower had made in Europe. It was a subject he really wanted to talk about. Finally Stephens had to interrupt, apologize, usher the vets out and show the next visitor in.

Mr. Buckner, a fair-haired young General Motors executive, has been lent to the Republicans to set up an organization which will look after the political interests of the constantly growing millions of ex-servicemen and women.

THE ARMY-McCARTHY hearings in the Senate finally affected the life of Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower. A Red Cross unit known as "The Senate Ladies Group"—which includes the vice president's wife and the wives of both senators

To Install New Guided Missiles Around Capital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sixteen batteries of the new "Nike" guided missiles are to be installed as an air defense ring around the capital, Congress was advised today.

Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the House Armed Services Committee said authorization for the Nike installations in this vital area was included in an $877,001,000 military construction bill which he called up today in the House.

He disclosed that most of an $87,700,000 item carried in the bill for secret construction by the Army actually was for installation of Nike batteries around Washington and other top priority target cities.

He did not name the other cities. From other sources it was learned that each of the 16 batteries to be tied into the air defenses around the Washington-Baltimore area will be equipped with two launchers for the 500-mile-an-hour Nikes.

and ex-senators — has annually thrown a luncheon for the First Lady.

Invitations had gone out for this year's party, and many of the checks had been mailed in. But at the last minute the affair had to be called off. The reason was that it had been booked for the big caucus room in the Senate Office Building.

And those mean old senators wouldn't cancel their Army-McCarthy hearings for even one day to allow their wives to entertain Mamie. It turned out all right, however, because to make up for their disappointment, Mrs. Eisenhower gave a party for them — in the White House.

AN UNTOLD STORY about two of Washington's most regal grand dames—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Edith Benham Helm—has just come to light. Mrs. Wilson is, of course, the widow of the World War I President.

Mrs. Helm, in addition to being a member of Washington society's most conservative group, known as the "Cave Dwellers," also served as White House social secretary during the Wilson, Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

In her new book of memoirs, "The Captains and the Kings," Mrs. Helm confesses how she and the wife of President Wilson were caught red-handed spying.

It was during one of Wilson's visits to France in 1918. The famous Marshal Foch had come to call on the President. The two women hid behind a door to get their first look at him. They were detected by a French aide.

MRS. RICHARD M. NIXON, wife of the vice president, has always bought her own groceries at one of the big supermarkets in a shopping center near her Washington suburban home. But recently she's had to give this up. Too many of the other shoppers recognized her and started following her around to see what she was buying.

GEORGE M. HUMPHREY, Secretary of the Treasury, got a strange letter from a doctor in California recently. Humphrey had never heard of him before, but this is what he wrote:

"Enclosed is my check for $1 for my ticket to the McCarthy-Stevens show. If it continues to be as good, I will send a larger check."

Secretary Humphrey endorsed the check and deposited it in the general fund of the Treasury, in accordance with usual practice.

DR. ROBERT W. BURGESS, Director of the Bureau of the Census, played a major role in compiling the system for the new joint Department of Commerce-Department of Labor monthly reports on employment. He is a mathematical genius and he can carry all kinds of figures in his head.

He can cite statistics by the half hour. But he confesses to one weakness of memory. He has trouble remembering his own telephone number.

FOUR VACANCIES ON TEACHING STAFFS OF LOCAL SCHOOLS

There are four vacancies on teaching staffs at Carrier Mills—two each at the high school and the grade school.

The high school needs a home economics and a commerce instructor. Vacancies at the grade school are the principalship and a fifth grade teacher.

Roy L. Blockley, grade school principal, and Mrs. Blockley, kindergarten teacher, announced their resignations early this month.

Mrs. Van Parsons has been employed as kindergarten teacher. Her husband is a member of the teaching staff now and she taught at Stonefort this term.

Also employed as a grade school teacher for next term is Mrs. Joann DeWitt, widow of the late Ted DeWitt, former Carrier Mills high school coach. Increased enrollment has made it necessary to enlarge the teaching staff for the coming year.

Vacancies at the high school were brought about by the resignations of Mrs. Betty Parker, home economics, and Mrs. Oma Lewis, commerce.

LIONS CLUB HONORS SCHOLASTIC LEADERS

Scholastic leaders in the Carrier Mills schools, five each from the high school and the grade school, were honor guests of the Carrier Mills Lions club at their regular meeting Monday evening.

This is the first year for the civic organization to recognize the schools' honor students, but plans are to make it an annual affair.

High school honor students were Marilyn Billingsley, Jo Ann Henson, Ron Culbreth, Darrell Felty and Bob Parks. Grade school honor students were Judy Brewer, Brenda Pyle, Larry Edwards, Jerry Fort and Charles Rann. The grade school pupils were accompanied by Miss Dinah Tanner, 6th grade teacher and introduced by Principal Roy L. Blockley. Warren Jennings, principal at CMCHS, introduced the high school students.

DRIVER TRAINING COURSE A SUCCESS

The driver training course, offered at Carrier Mills high school for the first time this term, has been declared a success by school officials.

Fourteen students received driver's license through the course, taught by Coach Claude Shelton, Shirley Arnold, David Black, Stanley Cole, Greta Collins, Ron Corbett, Jerry Hafford, David Lightfoot, Alice McSparrin, Karlene Milburn, Jim Miller, Gordon Smith, Gene Shadowness, Doris Purl and Jerry Sweat are the students to get their driver's license.

The driver training car was furnished the school through the courtesy of the O'Keefe Motor Co.

Homes of 24 Presidents Open Now To Public

WASHINGTON (AP)—The home of at least 24 U. S. presidents have become public museums and memorials.

Theodore Roosevelt's birthplace in New York City is a museum, and Sagamore Hill, his Long Island residence at Oyster Bay, became a national shrine last year.

Hyde Park, near Poughkeepsie, N. Y., residence of Franklin D. Roosevelt, has been a national historic site since 1944. Visitors to New York State also may see Lincolnton, the home of Martin Van Buren at Stockport, N. Y., as well as the cottage at Wilton where Ulysses S. Grant died.

At Quincy, Mass., the Adams mansion has been preserved as a national memorial to John Adams and his son, John Quincy Adams. John Adams' birthplace nearby also is open.

At Hillsborough, N. H., is the homestead where Franklin Pierce spent his early years. In Plymouth, Vt., thousands visit the combination store, post office and cottage where Calvin Coolidge was born and where he was sworn in as president by his father.

Near Lancaster, Pa., stands Wheatland, the home of James Buchanan, now a museum. The cabin in which he was born may be seen at Chambersburg, Pa. At Caldwell, N. J., the birthplace of Grover Cleveland has been presented to the state.

Three In Tennessee
Virginia is famous for George Washington's Mt. Vernon on the Potomac and Thomas Jefferson's Monticello near Charlottesville. Near the latter, James Monroe's Ash Lawn, although privately owned, is open to the public. Visitors also are admitted to Woodrow Wilson's birthplace at Staunton, Va.

Tennessee boasts the homes of three presidents, all museums. Andrew Jackson's mansion, The Hermitage, is near Nashville. The James K. Polk home at Columbia is preserved by a memorial association. Andrew Johnson's home, tailor shop and grave at Greeneville, are a national monument.

In Ohio, Grant's birthplace near Cincinnati is now a state park. The Rutherford B. Hayes estate, Spiegel Grove, a state park at Fremont, includes the president's tomb and a museum. The house, open occasionally, remains a family residence. James A. Garfield's home at Newton, O., and Warren G. Harding's house at Marion, O. welcome visitors.

Benjamin Harrison's home is one of the sights in Indianapolis, Ind. The only home Abraham Lincoln ever owned, at Springfield, Ill., is constantly thronged by visitors as is the Hodgenville, Ky., log cabin believed to have been Lincoln's birthplace.

Herbert Hoover's birthplace at West Branch, Ia., was bought as a memorial, while President Eisenhower's family home in Abilene, Kans., has already been opened to visitors as part of the Eisenhower Foundation's museum.

The 370 steam locomotives of the Illinois Central Railroad in 1953 consumed more than 2 1/2 million tons of coal in the movement of freight.

Statistics say that tea is the most popular beverage in the world.

269,427 Public Aid Recipients in State During March

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois Public Aid Commission today reported it paid $11,473,000 to 269,427 aid recipients during March.

The number of persons on direct relief was 81,592, nearly a 50 per cent increase over the number in 4,595 getting $332,201 in March, 1953.

The Daily Register, Harrisburg, Illinois
Thursday, May 27, 1954

March, 1953—56,168. Direct relief payments totaled $2,689,800 last March, while in IPAC programs declined, so the grand total for all five programs last March, $11,473,700, was below the $11,694,320 paid out in March, 1953. Disability assistance also rose for the month, with 5,559 persons receiving $408,039 compared to 4,595 getting $332,201 in March, 1953. The Daily Register 25c a week

A sort of armistice, constrained and awkward, existed between Elaine and Mrs. Dahlstrom now. Each went out of her way to be polite and considerate of the other, yet managed to comply with an inner urge to say no more to the other than necessary.

When Elaine had tried to thank Mrs. Dahlstrom, not only for doing Tom's laundry, but hers as well, Mrs. Dahlstrom had answered tersely, "I've been doing Tom's washing for more years than I've had this machine. And your few little things don't take up much water."

She had spoken even more curtly on that first Sunday. At 10:30 she had come into the living room, where Elaine and Tom were leisurely scanning the paper. Talking to the newspaper scattered on the floor rather than to them, she had said, "Isn't it about time you got ready for church?"

Obediently, Elaine uncurling her legs and started to rise out of the big chair. Suddenly, she knew she couldn't go to church. She couldn't stand beside Mrs. Dahlstrom and thank her old friends for their good wishes when all the time she felt that her mother-in-law's wishes were not good.

"We... we're not going," she said, more emphatically than she meant to, and leaned back in her chair.

Mrs. Dahlstrom looked questioningly at Tom. For an instant it seemed that he would respond to some unspoken command in his mother's eyes. But he said quietly, "Maybe next Sunday, Ma."

Elaine thought his mother's shoulders drooped a little when, without another word, she left them. They heard her car start and she was gone.

Then Tom got up from his chair, took her chilly hands in his large warm ones, and pulled her to her feet. Wrapping his arms around her, he leaned down and whispered against her hair, "Do you realize, Mrs. Dahlstrom, that this is the first time we've been alone in the house since we arrived? Let's not waste these precious moments reading the funny paper."

As she responded to his hungry kiss, Elaine forgot everything except the quick urgency of her love.

Next Sunday Mrs. Dahlstrom got dressed and left for church without a word about it to Elaine, or to Tom either, as far as she knew. Elaine couldn't help wondering if Mrs. Dahlstrom and Tom talked about her when she was away.

Another question plagued Elaine, too. How often did Astrid ride over the forest trail to see Tom?

Try as she would to thrust the question aside, it kept returning.

As the days passed, Tom seemed to become more remote.

She knew he woke each morning refreshed and invigorated and impatient to start the day's work. But it seemed he withdrew into himself a little more with each sun-down and, while they lived under his mother's roof and moved in her shadow, she was powerless to stop the withdrawing process.

She dreaded the day when Mr. Conners would announce Mrs. Farrell's return. Then Friday, Oct. 21, arrived and with it was the information that Mrs. Farrell would be back at her desk the following Monday.

Elaine's hand still tingling with Mr. Conners' grateful handshake, she stared at the door that had closed behind him. A black emptiness filled her. Ahead stretched an endless procession of weeks when she'd have too much time to think, too much time to be in Mrs. Dahlstrom's way, too much time to be under her disapproving gaze.

One of them—Elaine or Mrs. Dahlstrom—would have to give. She could feel it in her heart. Every beat was like the echo of the tick of a time-bomb, set to go off maybe tonight, maybe next week, but inevitably set to explode with repercussions that would scar or mend her whole life. Would Tom choose his mother? Or, if he did choose her, would the memory of his mother's hurt and disapproval blemish their whole life together?

Once more she went through the motions of straightening out Mrs. Farrell's desk before she slipped on her coat. Then, though her feet were heavy as stones, she hurried down the back stairs before the dismissal bell rang. She was afraid she'd cry if Marion tried to shake her again.

After supper, Elaine did the dishes as hurriedly as she dared. Yet, even before she was finished, Tom had cleaned up and was ready to take her to that fateful minstrel show.

She knew, without turning from the sink, that he now stood leaning against the doorframe looking at her. She also knew that he was smiling and that he loved her. Smiling, she wheeled around and looked at him.

Tom wore the same suit he had worn when they were married. Its dark-brown tones intensified the blondness of his wavy crew-cut that added a little-boy look to his still youthful appearance.

His smile widened into a grin which had a hint of possessive insolence.

Although she told herself she was wrong, she felt for the moment that nothing on earth had happened or could happen to spoil the perfect understanding between them.

But something would happen. Tonight was the minstrel show and after that would be Mrs. Dahlstrom's outspoken disapproval. Then Tom would have to choose between his mother and his wife.

So sparsely settled are some sections of Australia that the National Geographic Society's map of this island continent shows a number of individual homesteads by name, as if they were towns or cities.
